Rabbi Yaakov Beasley spent three wonderful years in Minneapolis trying to stay warm while teaching at Akiva High School and Torah Academy. Happily married to Devorah Beasley, he is the proud father of five boys, including two ex-soldiers and two soon to be recruits. Presently the Tanach Coordinator at Yeshivat Lev haTorah, Yaakov was a lead editor on the Torah MiEtzion parsha series, the writer of several Tradition articles on modern Torah study, and speaks around North America on Tanach. He is presently writing a commentary on Trei Asar for the Maggid series, working on a doctorate at Bar Ilan University on Shir haShirim, and wondering what to say to God when He sneezes...
